NOTE:--BRACKETED SECTIONS ARE OPPOSITES. SECTIONS ARE NUMBERED FROM MEN'S TOILET

THIS is a true reproduction of the diagram of the Pullman Company, showing the occupants of the berths on the car "Ontario," running from Pittsburg to Washington on the night of September 9, 1908, when that baffling plot was consummated which, with its consequent events, is so merrily detailed in "The Man in Lower Ten," the new mystery romance by Mary Roberts Rinehart, author of "The Circular Staircase."

"'The Man in Lower Ten,' by Mary Roberts Rinehart, published by The Bobbs-Merrill Company, is one of the strongest and most entrancing of latter-day mystery stories. 'The Circular Staircase,' her first novel, made a commotion, but it is safe to predict that 'The Man in Lower Ten' will arouse even greater interest and wider approval. The author's liveliness of spirit and sprightliness of wit make 'The Man in Lower Ten' a distinctive and remarkable piece of fiction."

SECOND PRINTING OFH. H. Bashford's THE PILGRIM'S MARCH

which The Bookman says "is not unfairly described in the publisher's note as 'a novel of unusual merit.'"

The Living Age says:

"A remarkable first novel."

The Chicago Record-Herald says:

"Really charming. They're all very real, these good people. Broggers, and lisping Chris and 'Good Old Lomax' and sweet, human Margaret, and brave, brave Betty, these are altogether too nice and wholesomely lovable to shut away with the memory of their story's single reading. No; there's too much to be learned and enjoyed, from jolly opening episode to happy conclusion, to think of perusing 'The Pilgrim's March' but once."

The Hartford Courant says:

"A rarely interesting novel."

The Washington (D. C.) Star says:

"Somewhat of the temperament of Miss Sinclair's 'Divine Fire.' . . . Reaches a powerful climax with intensely dramatic effect. . . . Will be one of the notable books of the season."

SECOND PRINTING OFHolder and Jordan's FISH STORIES

Alleged and experienced, with a little history, natural and unnatural. With colored plates and many illustrations. $1.75 net.

The New York Sun says:

"It may be hardly fair to put under the head of fiction these entertaining 'Fish Stories,' but they are really fish stories, and a good many of them strain credulity more than the output of pure imagination. A delightful miscellany, telling about fish of the strangest kind, with scientific description melting into accounts of personal adventure which lead the reader on till he is brought face to face with the author's asseveration that things really happened as they are told. Nearly everything that is entertaining in the fish world is touched upon and science and fishing are made very readable."

The N. Y. Times Saturday Review says:

"Highly interesting and varied stories. A discursive book (and) none the less entertaining for that. All in all, this is a delightful book for a fisherman and for general readers."

JUST ISSUEDDavid Starr Jordan's THE FATE OF ICIDORUM

A biting allegorical satire on Protectionism. 90 cents net. By mail, 96 cents.

Shaw and Beckwith's THE LADY OF THE DYNAMOS

An appealing love story dominates the heroic struggle of an American electrician and an English girl against treachery, superstition, and open opposition, to reclaim a wilderness in Ceylon. $1.50.

Carter's WHEN RAILROADS WERE NEW

For general readers. Covers the railroad builders and the picturesque history of the great systems up to the time they cease to be unusual and become commercial. With 16 illustrations. $2.00 net.

Knowlton and Ridgway's BIRDS OF THE WORLD

A popular account. The most comprehensive one-volume bird book. Sixteen colored plates and several hundred other illustrations. $7.00 net.

EVERY READER AT ONCE BECOMES AN ADVERTISER

Here are a few of the most recent letters received

"Ought to be read by everyone" says David Warfield. "Its philosophy is the truest for this day. I heartily recommend it to everyone who has lost for the moment the trail of sunshine."

"It is a tonic"

says Dr. R. S. MacArthur. "An inspiration in our workaday life, Dr. Marden has placed us deeply in his debt."

"Eclipses all his previous works" says Edwin Markham. "In sharp sentences and pointed paragraphs he arouses us to see that thought is only another name for fate."

"There is truth in it" says Charlotte Perkins Gilman. "I should think that many people would be helped, strengthened, and encouraged by it."

"Stop, look, and listen"

says Leigh Mitchell Hodges, "when you come to such a battle-cry as is sounded here. Dr. Marden is one of our most valuable Americans. His chief value as a citizen of this republic is his sane optimism."

"The most valuable chapter for me"

says Thomas Wentworth Higginson, "is that on 'How to Grow Old.' I wish to learn just that. I am now 85, and have never felt old yet, but I shall keep your chapter at hand in case that should ever happen to me."

ALICE BROWN'S

The Story of Thyrza

Which the newspaper critics compare and contrast with

Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter"

A strong indication that Miss Brown has written a great American novel

A Few Critical Opinions

The book is obviously one of exquisite charm.—New York Tribune.

A daring attempt to sketch a woman's life. Poignant and penetrating in its analysis of character.—Philadelphia Press.

Told with delicacy and feeling.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Altogether, without Thomas Hardy's melodrama, the people are reminiscent of his peasants, with strange passionate natures, hidden within dumb, patient breasts; simpler, and in many ways more convincing.—Boston Globe.

A tale of strength and color, of subtleties in character drawing, absorbing in interest.—Detroit Free Press.

Written with great power and great reticence.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The most captivating interest of the book is in the character drawing.—New York American.

No writer has a keener, more delightful appreciation of the New England character, none a more refreshing sense of humor, none a more delicate or a more human touch.—Chicago Examiner.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish on April 15 General Charles King's latest army romance, entitled "Lanier of the Cavalry." This will be followed closely by "Love's Privilege," Stella M. Düring's prize mystery romance, and Elizabeth Dejeans's "The Winning Chance."

THE Office of The Publishers' Weekly will be ready next week to deliver to subscribers the "Annual American Catalog, 1908," and the "Annual Library Index, 1908." The "Annual Library Index" this year will contain in addition to its regular departments a list of libraries of special use to booksellers who desire profitable connections with these institutions.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish shortly a book of woodland lore, by Josef Brunner, called "Tracks and Tracking." In this book the author shows how to look for animal and bird tracks, and how it is possible to tell by the record of the signs the name of the animal or bird that made them, its sex, how fast it was going, its mood, and many other things of the kind.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly "The Romance of a Plain Man," a new novel by Ellen Glasgow. Miss Glasgow's story, as many of her former ones have, been, is in the Richmond that followed the war. Her hero, however, is not a "member of the ruined aristocracy," but is derived from that class known as "poor white trash," who wins his way upward not only in business but in social standing as well.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY have gotten up the charming volume "Pippins and Peaches," for Easter and Commencement gifts. The book, full of bright epigrams by Madame Qui Vive and pictures by Penrhyn Stanlaws reproduced in dainty colorings, is printed on India tint paper and artistically bound. They have also just ready a third big edition of "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill," one of the funniest books in years.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish in May a new story by "Sidney McCall," (Mrs. Ernest Fenollosa,) entitled "Red Horse Hill," in which the author has furnished another American setting, that of a Southern mill town. The conflict of human interests, a deep love of motive that runs through four related lives among the characters of this remarkable story, and the terrific power for good or evil held in the hands of the controller of Southern mills, all bear a vital part in the drama. Yet, in no respect is it a sensational romance, made for the whetting of jaded literary appetites, and still less may it be called a tract against child labor. "Red Horse Hill" is, primarily, a strong, human story, dealing with human nature and with love.

B. W. HUEBSCH, New York City, announces a collection of short stories by "Robert Aitken," entitled "Beyond the Sky Line." Each of the stories included in this volume possesses a unique plot and an unexpected climax. There is a fine repression in the author's style, much is told by implication, and throughout the author's ability to condense is evidenced. Not a single story but could be expanded into a work of average novel size. For this reason it is impossible to read one immediately after another, for the reader first has to rid himself of the spell which each exercises. For his scenes the author takes us to all parts of the world. He is as much at home in the African jungle as at the opera in London. His characters range from the highly sensitive product of civilization to the raw savage, and he is equally skilful in depicting both.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (qto: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., etc., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Minneapolis, Minn., James B. Alexander, 2416 26th Ave., S., 1909. c. 11+337 p. D. cl., *$1 net.

Author of "The dynamic theory" examines the various theories held about the soul by well-known scientists, theologians and philosophers. He arrives at the conclusion that "the soul dies, not because its home in the skull is wrecked, but because it is proved to be a material and mortal substance. . . . It is the part that feels and thinks, and thinking and feeling are proved to be physical functions." He asserts that the wish for immortality rests chiefly on fear. If a man is sure he will never wake up again he will not be afraid to go to sleep. If they learn to live right men will never die before they are ready, or before they have exhausted all the delights of life.

Allen, W: Harvey. Civics and health; with an introd. by W: T. Sedgwick. Bost., Ginn, [1909.] c. 11+411 p. il. D. (Efficient citizen ser.) cl., $1.25.

Author is secretary of the Bureau of Municipal Research. The introduction is written by the professor of biology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In forty-five states and territories the teaching of hygiene is compulsory, but the textbooks for the study taught by 500,000 teachers to 20,000,000 pupils are not made interesting. This book tries to show how the study can be made of great interest. Points out that health can only be secured by thoroughly enforced civil laws.

Aumerle, R: Between friends. N. Y., Ben-ziger Bros., 1909. c. 194 p. D. cl., 85 c.

A boarding school for Catholic boys is the scene. Joe Gavin is a leader among the boys of St. Nicholas, and the hero of the story. The day that marks the beginning of the Easter holidays is a sad one for him. He watches his friends depart to their friends and homes, knowing that he will be almost alone in the big school as he has been in four previous years. He is an orphan, and thinking of the past, becomes so unhappy that he runs away. He has many experiences in the city, is arrested as a thief, sent to a reformatory, from which he escapes, and finally gets back to St. Nicholas.

Bankart, G. P. The art of the plasterer; an account of the decorative development of the craft chiefly in England from the xvth to the xviii century; with chapters on the stucco of the classic period and of the Italian Renaissance; also on sgraffito, par-getting, Scottish, Irish, and modern plaster-work. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1909. 8+350 p. il. Q. cl., *$10 net.

This volume is the outcome of the author's attempt to comply with the wish for a comprehensive treatise on the decorative bearing of the plasterer's art (as opposed to its mechanical side), which has been expressed by many architects, plasterers and others who have been present at lectures on the subject which he has delivered from time to time in London and the provinces. Bruce, H: Addington Bayley. The romance of American expansion. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1909. c. 13+246 p. pls. pors. O. cl., $1.75 net.

The aim is to give a brief yet sufficiently comprehensive account of the territorial growth of the United States, with especial reference to the achievements of the men—Daniel Boone, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Sam Houston, Thomas Hart Benton, John Charles Fremont, William Henry Seward, and William McKinley—who were pre-eminent among their contemporaries in each of the forward steps in the movement from sea to sea. By thus emphasizing the personal element it is hoped not merely to enhance the interest of the narrative, but still more to afford a clear view of the true nature of the American advance. "Hints for further reading" gives a good bibliography of the subject. Index.

Chambers, Rob. W: Special messenger. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. '04, '05, '08. 260 p. il. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

The heroine is a young gentlewoman of Southern lineage and Northern training. Roused to action by the death, as she thought, of the one man she could have loved, she enters the Union service as a scout and messenger. Mr. Chambers carries his readers into the real firing line of battle, and the special messenger into the more deadly work behind the lines, showing that human nature remains human nature even in the fiercest turmoil of war. There is action, danger, love, and humor, and through it all passes the fearless young woman determined to win at all hazards yet with underlying tenderness for her dear South. By the author of "The firing line," "The fighting chance," etc.

Chapin, Rob. Coit. The standard of living among workingmen's families in New York City. N. Y., Charities Publication Committee, 1909. c. 15+372 p. figs. O. (Russell Sage Foundation publications.) cl., $2.

Under the direction of a committee of the New York State Conference of Charities and Correction, a large number of social workers, paid and volunteer, devoted the summer months to visiting workingmen's families in various parts of Greater New York, for the purpose of securing at first hand the information that was desired. With the aid of an exhaustive schedule, the investigators took down full details of expenditures by families for food, rent, clothes, etc., sources of income, housing accommodations, etc. This report, it is believed, proves that wages in New York make it impossible for a large portion of the working population to obtain healthful homes and food and some recreation. Besides the report of the New York City investigation, the book includes articles by social workers, reports of investigations carried on in other cities, a scientific analysis of food values, a bibliography (8 p.), and other features which make it available for study and guidance to all who are interested in social betterment. Prof. Chapin is Horace White professor of economics and finance in Beloit College, Wisconsin.

Dakota and the more southern Nebraska is the scene of this tale of troubles with Indians in the seventies. A young English girl is rescued after her parents have died and is brought up on an Indian reservation. Later she proves to be the daughter of a rich English officer and inherits a great fortune. Her rescuer, who has guarded her from her childhood days, is selected by her to help her manage her lands in the West. Incidentally the story gives quite a picture of life among the Indians and the work of the United States soldiers.

The text of this latest addition to the Cambridge poets includes all Dryden's undoubted poetical works, both original and translated, except his dramas, and, with the possible exception of some hymns, all that have been attributed to him with any show of reason. Besides his poetical works, a large number of the poet's critical essays also appear in the volume. The chronological arrangement of the contents gives the reader a clearer conception of Dryden's literary development, and of his relation to the politics of his time, than the classified arrangements hitherto adopted. This edition, which has been seven years in preparation, has a more complete collection of Dryden's writings than has hitherto been attempted in popular form, a careful collation of the entire text with the original editions, a chronological arrangement of its contents, and a reprinting in the notes of a considerable portion of Sir Walter Scott's "Commentary on Dryden." The author has had in mind in the preparation of the book the novice, for whom the explanations and descriptions have been simplified as much as possible, technicalities and unfamiliar expressions being reserved for the latter part of the book, when the readers will have gained knowledge and experience.

Author is professor of physics in Swarthmore College. The book is designed to provide a suitable number of experiments for a course in physics, including those needed to meet the entrance requirements of colleges and universities. While it can be used with any text-book, the order of its subjects is the same as the author's "Elements of physics."

Hollis, Alfred Claud. The Nandi; their language and folk-lore; with introd. by Sir C: Eliot. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1909. 40+328 p. pls. fold. map. O. cl., $5.25.

On returning to East Africa in 1905 the author determined to pursue his studies in the languages, folk-lore and customs of those tribes inhabiting the English Protectorate, which form an offshoot of the Nilotic stock, and to write a book on the Nandi-Lumbwa group similar in idea to his book on "Masai." Since 1905-'06 the Nandi have settled down quietly and show all signs of becoming a law-abiding tribe. Their customs and superstitions are of great interest.

Hopf, Ludwig. The human species; considered from the standpoints of comparative anatomy, physiology, pathology and bacteriology. Authorized English ed.; with 216 il. and 7 plates. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 20+457 p. O. cl., *$3 net.

After a short introduction dealing with the origin of man from historical and geological data, the skeleton, muscles, and the circulatory, respiratory, alimentary, urogenital, nervous and sensory systems are compared in detail with those of animals. The physiology of the same parts is dealt with in a similar manner. Next follows a section upon comparative psychology. The remaining portions of the book are concerned with a contrast of the diseases of man and animals, and of the resultant effects upon the tissues and function. Certain diseases attack man only, and the reasons for this are fully discussed. The relation of parasites to man and animals, the conditions calling for surgical aid, and the diseases of the higher sense organs are also discussed. An appendix deals with the subject of self-help in animals, and among the lower types of man, particularly with regard to child-birth, as illustrating the development of folk-medicine, and the progress of medical treatment up to the present day standard. Appendix deals with comparative therapeutics.

Horst, E. Clemens. Duty on hops: revised report of hearing given before the Committee on Ways and Means on Thursday, November 19th, 1908, to E. C. Horst, hop grower, of San Francisco, on application of the California Tariff Revision Committee for increased duty on hops. San Francisco, E. Clemens Horst Co., 1909.] 20 p. 8°, pap., gratis.

A plea for increase of duty on hops from 12 c. to 24 c. American consumption of hops is 43,000,000 lbs. In 1908 America grew 38,000,000 and exported 22,000,000 lbs., leaving only 16,000,000 for home consumption and making it necessary to import the rest. In Germany and Austria labor is cheaper and hop growing is becoming less and less in this country. After Mr. Horst gave his statistics there was a long discussion, in which many facts of hop-growing are brought out.

The author of "Poverty" and "Socialists at work" calls upon labor to stand firm and to rouse itself to work, conscience, will power, independence and united action. He compares the work being done for himself in the various countries of Europe with the shilly-shallying ways of the workman in the United States, where he is so often controlled by the various political leaders. The author favors socialism and trade-unions.

Hutten, Baroness Bettina v. Kingsmead: a novel; with front. by Will Foster. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1909. c. 329 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "Pam" and "The halo" brings some of the characters of these novels into her new story. Kingsmead is the fine old English country seat that Lord Kingsmead, finding himself deeply in debt on coming of age, sold to a Mr. Lansing, who had made a fortune through a special kind of bathtub. Lord Kingsmead (our old friend "Tommy" of "The halo") and young Lansing had been intimate from college days, and one of Tommy's greatest pleasures when in England was to visit at his old home. There are interesting people gathered there for Christmas, which include Tommy's sister, Briget, now Lady Pontefract, our old friend Pam and little Pammy. The plot has chiefly to do with two love affairs, and Lord Kingsmead's efforts to help all parties. Kingsmead is pictured as a very charming fellow, delicate, sensitive and rather eccentric.

A poem that purports to be the autobiography of a man who, having revelled in all earthly pleasures, becomes disgusted with life and blows out his brains. To his utter amazement he finds that he has only killed his body, his thinking self remains as alive as ever. The narrative of his painful experiences in spirit-life shows imagination.

Kenealy, Arabella. The whips of time; il. by T: Mitchell Peirce. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1909. c. 6+373 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

In the interest of psychological science a London physician substitutes the child of a condemned criminal for that of a lady of wealth and family, acting upon the theory that science would be benefited and that environment alone is responsible for character. What happened twenty-three years later furnishes the plot of an unusual novel. The author, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, practiced medicine in London for six years before seriously devoting herself to novel writing.

King, H: Churchill. The laws of friendship—human and divine. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. 10+159 p. 12°, *$1.25 net.

To Dr. King the problem of friendship is the problem of the whole of life, so significant and comprehensive that the fundamental thought which lies back of this book has long been for him a kind of ruling conception. Here he works out in a more thoroughgoing way than ever before this conception of life and of religion as friendship, disclosing its great fundamental laws. For the human relation suffers as really as the divine from failure to heed these fundamental laws.

Author is of the United States National Museum, member of the American Ornithologists' Union, Washington Academy of Sciences, president of Biological Society of Washington, etc. Frederic A. Lucas is Curator-in-Chief, Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. This exhaustive work, in one volume, aims to set forth in non-technical language the salient facts regarding the birds of the whole world. The main attention has been given to birds as they appear in their homes—that is, their plumage, habits, songs, nests and eggs, food, etc. The treatment of so-called game birds has been made specially full, hoping it may meet the wants of sportsmen as well as of the original reader. In all cases the scientific name is given with the popular one under the picture of each species or special bird.

Lane, J. Russell. The house between the trees: a novel. Bost., C. M. Clark Publishing Co., 1909. c. 4+356 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

A motor car accident begins the story: the owner of the car is temporarily deprived of his reason, which leads his father and mother to adopt the little girl his car ran down. In time the girl becomes an extraordinary surgeon and restores her adopted brother's mind by a skillful operation. In the later chapters the interest is monopolized by a mysterious being who occupies "the house between the trees," his identity baffling even his next door neighbors, none being let into the secret until he unmask himself of his own accord. Many of the scenes are laid in the Catskill region.

The author is United States Forest Agent, occupying a position which was created for him; in the performance of his duties he has travelled all over the country addressing audiences on the subject of forest reserves, forest preservation and reforestation. His book tells of exciting adventures with snowslides, wild beasts and wild weather; of the forest and the animal life of the Rockies; of the beauties of the mountains themselves and the delights of camping among them. One of the chapters gives the authentic and interesting autobiography of a thousand-year-old pine which Mr. Mills deciphered from a careful dissection of its fallen trunk; another tells of the habits of the beaver and his usefulness in regulating the flow of rivers; and a third is a particularly good bear story. There are fourteen papers in all, of which two or three have appeared in magazines.

Munroe, Ja. Phinney. The specialist blight on American education. [Bost., James Phinney Munroe, 79 Summer St., 1909.] 340-344 p. O. (Add. author for price.)

An article that appeared in Popular Science Monthly for October. Author points out the danger to American education of youths becoming specialists before they have the necessary general education and knowledge of life. "As a result we have our professions filled with men who can do much within the little cells of their specialty, but who are wholly ineffectual in the great world of human interests; we have a rich and powerful civilization that is breeding pitifully few great leaders of human thought."

Munroe, W: Bennett. The government of European cities. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. c. 8+409 p. O. cl., $2.50 net.

Author assistant professor of government in Harvard University. The purpose of his work is to explain, in a general way, the structure and functions of city government in three European countries—France, Germany, England—and to contrast these, wherever they may be appropriately compared, with the structure and functions of city government in the United States. The author's aim has been to describe who the city authorities are, how they are chosen, what they do, and how they do it, but not to examine in detail the physical operation of municipal services or the minutiae of municipal administration. Author is lecturer in experimental psychology in the University of Cambridge, and professor of psychology in King's College, University of London. He assumes his readers are already familiar with the elements of general psychology. They are also supposed to know the general structure and functions of the nervous system. The work specially marks the distinction between experimental psychology and spiritualistic research, often confused even by educated people. He endeavors to bring within the leaves of one book the essentials of this youthful science, now strewn through a vast literature. There are bibliographical notes at close of the chapters.

Prof. Otis is instructor in English, College of the City of New York. The work is in five parts: Historical verse; Religious verse; Political and satirical verse; imaginative verse; Translations. It considers all American verse which is worthy of note because of its connection with American history or because of the light which it throws upon the social and intellectual characteristics of the times. It is based upon a careful investigation of the original editions in all the older American libraries, and much of its material has never before been mentioned in any history or bibliography of American verse. It is in no sense an anthology, and all unimportant material has been rigidly excluded. Exhaustive bibliography (17 p.) and careful index.

Only a school edition of Pope's poem. The text is Warburton's in the 9 volume edition of 1766, which contains Pope's "last corrections, additions and improvements" and was printed from a copy corrected by Pope himself which, with additional notes in his own hand, he delivered to the editor a little before his death. George Holden in his introduction gives the origin and history of the poem, the persons concerned, the Key to the "Lock" and an essay on other poems of a similar kind. There is also a chronological table of Pope's principal publications and some of the principal events of his life subsequent to 1713. Appendix explains game of ombre referred to in poem.

Reade, W. H. V. The moral system of Dante's Inferno. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1909. 445 p. O. cl., $4.15.

Author is tutor of Keble College, Oxford. For nearly six centuries commentators of every land have busied themselves with the "Divine comedy." The unequalled variety of the literature inspired by Dante calls for amazement. The catalogue of a complete Dante library would suggest that this poet of local passions and forgotten ideals had contrived a way to the sympathies of scholars, artists, philosophers, men of science, statesmen and patriots of every nation in the civilized world. The author reviews this literature and appeals primarily to experts. He specially hopes to point out the philosophical foundations of the "Divine comedy."

Prof. Schevill is professor of history in the Chicago University, and is one of the foremost authorities of the day on his subject. His work, based largely on original research, is a comprehensive account of the history and the art of one of the most interesting cities in the world. In art, Siena was the home of the earliest school of painting, at the outset a rival of Florence, matching Duccio against Giotto and attracting foreign as well as producing native painters, sculptors and architects for generations, always preserving its original and particular line of evolution. A rival of Florence too in public affairs at first and long an enemy, its importance as a representative commune of the Middle Ages has always been recognized. '08. no paging, D. cl., †$1.50. The author tells the story from his cubhood to his splendid prime of that aristocrat of foxes, Domi-

no Reynard, and of his wild, free, happy life among the Goldur hills. Domino was a silver fox; in his life Mr. Seton has woven the results of his studies of the habits and mode of living of the fox as that animal is found in his native woods, as well as in captivity. The marital relations of the fox as the author describes them have already attracted the attention of those interested in wild animal lore. A companion volume to "The biography of a grizzly."

When only a boy of twelve Tom Dorrell meets Mr. Greatorex on the road with a broken down motor. Tom offers to mend it, and Greatorex thinking of a good joke tells him to go ahead. Tom comes out all right and the motor starts again. Mr. Greatorex is so impressed with Tom's character that he gives him a thoroughly scientific education and takes him into his home, where he can continue his invention. He turns out a genius and invents an airship when only eighteen, and with another young man of his own age starts for Morocco to release an English diplomat who has been captured by tribesmen and held for ransom.

The comedy from which "Famulus" is adapted and condensed was regularly acted at Westminster throughout the eighteenth century and down to the year 1854. It was then dropped, as in its original form it was not in all ways suitable for presentation on the stage. In 1907 Dr. Gow determined to restore it with omissions and alterations, and his version is here given with annotations for school use and for presentation in this somewhat shortened form.

Achilles Statius (Estação), a Portuguese, after studying in Evora, Löwen, Paris and Padua, went to Rome and became librarian to Cardinal Sforza, and afterwards secretary to Pope Pius v. His annotated edition of Catullus, 1566, was published from the Aldine Press. The reasons the writer specially selects the edition Statius for cross examination are that he is one of the earliest editors, that he frequently cites manuscript readings, that his work gives the impression of being more accurate than that of other editors of his century or even later, and that he occupies a commanding position in the textual criticism of Catullus. It was first intended to examine all the printed annotated editions of Catullus to 1850, and it is hoped this original plan may be made possible later.

The attitude of the London Punch toward Lincoln and our Civil War, and the long series of cartoons and comments resulting from it, form an interesting episode. Punch caricatured the "Yankees" and the President with venomous scurrility. After Lincoln's death it tried to make amends with an apologetic cartoon and poem. The entire series of cartoons is reproduced in this volume, with an historical and critical introduction by the editor.

The scene of this story is Indiana, in the neighborhood of the great oil wells. The characters are members of the Amish faith, and consist of Mr. and Mrs. David Swartz and their foster daughter Rose, now eighteen, and taken when a child from an orphan asylum. The Swartzs are well off through living simply. To them comes on a visit their pretty, stylish niece Margaret from the city. It is now the masquerading of Margaret begins, with her assuming the Amish dress. Two men of position connected with the oil wells fall in love with the two girls, thinking them both Amish. Besides the successful ending of two love affairs Rose finds her real father.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 3, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information and guidance in buying books. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of booktrade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

PERSISTENCE IN BUSINESS.

"Sow the seed between times—reap the harvest busy times."

MANY retail merchants, even some booksellers who pass among their kind as enterprising merchants, labor under the delusion that they have "done a stunt," as they call it, when they have turned their store upside down in an effort to prepare for a particular season—usually before St. Valentine's day, Easter and Christmas. Commendable as such fitful enterprise may be, these booksellers overlook the vital fact that such enterprise misses its effect by something like three hundred days, because such "stunts," if they are to make an impression, must be repeated almost every working day in the year.

One of the hardships that the book business shares with certain other trades is that it calls for unceasing effort to maintain itself, and that all such effort is self-limited unless it has new life and impetus put into it at regular if not frequent intervals. When a publisher, after months of thought and labor, is enabled to place a book on the market he dare not depend upon the initial volition, when putting the book out, to keep interest in it in motion; indeed, he cannot even hope to devote any considerable part of his time and energy to exploiting that particular book, much as he would wish to do so, not so much because a hundred other propositions urge him or confront him as because the nervous, restless public is forever clamoring for something new. Nor will the same means of exploiting a book be likely to prove successful in more than one case, each book requiring a separate treatment—so much depending upon the locality and the constituency in awakening and keeping alive the special interest. And so, with almost indecent haste, one book treads upon the heels of another, and the blatant, pretentious aspirant for public favor often crowds to the wall a more meritorious but also more modest rival.

Naturally, the bookseller must face the same difficulties that confront the publisher in distributing his share of the annual output of books; and the bookseller's difficulty is the greater, as his field is wider and his constituency more scattered than those of the publisher. Besides, he must be unremitting in his efforts to widen his acquaintanceship among the bookbuyers in his neighborhood as well as among those further afield, and must also, day by day, look after his distributing machinery, striving to make it as trustworthy and efficient as it is within human means to make it.

All this is better done "between times" than at the approach of any busy season, when customers are bound to turn up in larger numbers without much coaxing. Bookbuying, as a wise man long since discovered, is a habit which grows when judiciously fostered and encouraged. This may be done in various ways, among which a tempting, up-to-date window display is among the most important. As suggestion is of incalculable importance in winning customers it is needless to dwell upon the necessity of changing the display at least as often as once every fortnight, keeping in mind, when building up a display, every notable event—whether of local or larger interest. If the bookseller keeps wide awake he will learn that something happens almost every week that will help his business if he has wits and is clever enough to take advantage of such happenings as weddings, birthdays, the festivals of different nationalities, our own holidays, parties at different seasons, etc., etc. Our foreign population especially are liberal spenders on holidays, and anything displayed to touch their national pride or vanity is apt to be appreciated and patronized. We recall the recent experience of a bookseller in the Nutmeg State who, just before the celebration of Columbus Day by the Italians of his town, in which an Italian warship was to participate, secured a lot of American and Italian flags and post-cards of the warships of different nations on which he netted well over several hundred dollars in one day. His fellow merchants didn't think it worth while to bother with the "dago" trade, forgetting that nothing is so insignificant that it isn't worth while bothering with or making a try at it.

Then, "between times" is just the time to revise the arrangement of the interior of the store, to try out new ideas or "wrinkles." It will give the store a busy look as well as help the proprietor and his assistants to make the store fit the system better or to better adapt the system to utilizing the strength and strengthening the weakness of the store, so that in case of a rush the whole establishment will be fully equipped to bear the brunt of the attack and to do justice to every demand at the shortest possible notice.

"Between times," also, a certain interval should be devoted to the training and proper instruction of the store help. Never should any assistant be left to his own devices, except he has shown imagination and originality of interest, when he should be allowed to try new methods when expedient. When not waiting upon customers an average assistant should be taught to look after a certain section of the store and acquaint himself with the stock. Each day an hour at least should be devoted to instructing the apprentice in the mysteries of wrapping up bundles, packing cases, assisting the stock clerk, becoming acquainted with titles, in fact in all those elementary details necessary in advancing to the more important duties in the store. This instruction will be most effective when imparted by the employer; in case this is impracticable the duty should devolve upon the chief salesman. But in no case should it be omitted. And once a month every assistant in the store, from the humblest to the most important, should individually be catechized in his duties by the chief in his sanctum as well as encouraged to offer suggestions for improving the system.

By attention to these details all the year around the bookseller will find that the wheels of his business will move more smoothly and that the volume of business will increase month by month, be the beginnings ever so small.

A PRINTED PLAY NOT A BOOK.

PAUL HERVIEU, the French dramatist, has won his long-standing suit against the J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Company, which was brought to test the validity of the copyright of a five-act play entitled "Le Dedale." Hervieu, in 1903, wrote the play and had it printed in Paris on the press of L'Illustration. He then had the printed play entered in the copyright office at Washington in December, 1903. Two years later the J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Company copyrighted a play in English based on the Hervieu drama and entitled "The Labyrinth; or, a Case for Divorce," by George Moorehead.

Hervieu promptly brought suit for infringement of copyright. Counsel for the J. S. Ogilvie Company declared that there could be no infringement because the copyright secured by Hervieu was invalid, for the reason that a book set in type outside the United States could not be copyrighted here. Hervieu contended that the play was not a "book," that the copyright law clearly distinguishes between books and musical and dramatic compositions and provides different penalties for infringement of the several copyrights. Judge Martin, of the Circuit Court of the U. S. for the Southern District of New York, in his opinion filed March 23 holds that M. Hervieu's play is a dramatic composition and as such has a valid copyright. We give the opinion in full below:

It is claimed by the defendant that the complainant's copyright is invalid in that the copies of his dramatic composition as delivered at the office of the Librarian of Congress, and as brought before the public, were in book form, and therefore come within the proviso of Sec. 3 of the Act of March, 1891, which is to the effect that copies of books, photographs, chromos and lithographs filed with the Librarian of Congress shall be printed from type set within the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from negatives or drawings on stone made within the United States, and that the complainant, in procuring his copyright, filed copies of his dramatic composition in books that were printed from type set without the limits of the United States.

The Act of March 3, 1891, is an amendment to the then existing copyright law. It extended the privilege of copyright to foreigners under treaties of reciprocity. The complainant is a citizen of France and, under the treaties with France, her citizens are entitled to the benefit of this statute. Section 1 of said Act, so far as it relates to this question, reads thus:

The author, inventor, designer or proprietor of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print or photograph or negative thereof, or of a painting, drawing, chromo, statue, statuary—shall, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, have the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, etc.

Section 3 recites the conditions which must be complied with, and says:

"No person shall be entitled to a copyright unless he shall, on or before the day of publication in this or any foreign country, deliver at the office of the Librarian of Congress, or deposit in the mail within the United States, addressed to the Librarian—a printed copy of the title of the book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph or chromo, or a description of the painting, drawing, statue, statuary—for which he desires a copyright, nor unless he shall also, not later than the day of the publication thereof in this office or any foreign country, deliver at the office of the Librarian—two copies of such copyright book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, cut, print or photograph, or in case of a painting, drawing, statue, statuary, model or design for a work of fine arts, a photograph of the same; provided that in the case of a book, photograph, chromo, lithograph, the two copies of the same shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or made from transfers therefrom."

From the foregoing language, it is apparent to me that Congress did not intend to include "dramatic or musical compositions" as a "book." The proviso leaves out map, chart, dramatic or musical compositions, engraving, cut, print or photograph, painting, drawing, statue, statuary or model design for a work of fine arts. All these seem to have been purposely omitted from the list of those articles for which the type must be set, or plates and drawings made, in the United States. The Act provides for the printing of the whole list. It was self-evident to Congress, as it is to everybody, that dramatic compositions, if printed, must be upon sheets of paper known by bookmakers as signatures, and these signatures must be folded, thus making what may be called a book, but Congress especially eliminated both musical and dramatic compositions from being classified as a book. Congress twice designated, in the same section, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut and print as independent of the word "book," as therein used. It has often been held that a specific designation of any article in a legislative enactment excludes it from general terms contained in the same act. Potter's Dwarrior on Statutes, 198; Arthur vs. Lahey, 96 U. S., 112; Arthur vs. Stephani, 96 U. S. 125; Arthur vs. Rheims, 96 U. S. 143; Reische vs. Smythe, 13 Wall. 162; Ferry vs. Livingstone, 115 U. S. 549.

The question here presented is not whether a dramatic composition can ever be regarded as a book, but whether Congress intended, by the Act above quoted, to include dramatic compositions within the terms of the proviso. Dictionary definitions of the word "book" are of no aid in settling this question. It stands squarely upon the meaning of the Act.

It was said by Justice Swayne in Smythe vs. Fisk, 23 Wall., 374, 380: "A thing may be within the letter of a statute and not within its meaning, and within its meaning though not within its letter. The intention of the law maker is the law." In Clayton vs. Stone, 2 Paine, 382, the Court said: "The literary property intended to be protected by the Act is not to be determined by the size, form or shape in which it makes its appearance, but by the subject matter of the work."

There is another important thing to consider in construing this statute. The penalty for infringing a copyright of a musical or dramatic composition differs from that of infringing the copyright of books. Section 4964 R. S. U. S. provides that any person who, without the consent of the proprietor, shall sell or expose for sale any book that is protected by copyright, shall forfeit every copy thereof to the proprietor and pay such damages as may be recovered in a civil action in a court of competent jurisdiction. Section 4966 R. S. U. S. provides that any person who shall publicly perform or represent any dramatic composition for which a copyright has been obtained, without the consent of the proprietor thereof, shall be liable in damages therefor to be assessed not less than one hundred dollars for the first, and fifty dollars for every subsequent performance.

It will be observed, by analyzing these two sections of the statute, that Congress has intended all through its copyright enactments to distinguish between books and dramatic compositions. How the damages are to be measured in the case at bar, it is unnecessary now to discuss.

The history of the bill which resulted in this copyright statute of March 3, 1891, and the contemporaneous construction given it by the departments and the officers of the Government, conform to the views above expressed, but, to my mind, the language of the statute is so clear that it is unnecessary to enter into a discussion of the history of this legislation or the construction given it by the Treasury Department.

The case of Littleton vs. Oliver Ditson Co., decided by Judge Colt, of the First Circuit, 62 Fed. 597, and his decision affirmed by the Court of Appeals, 67 Fed. 905, involves the very question presented here, except in that case it was a musical composition, while in this it is dramatic, but by the language of the statute dramatic and musical compositions are coupled together; hence the holding of that Court, that a musical composition is not included in the proviso as a book, applies with equal force to the question presented in the case at bar.

I hold that the complainant's copyright is valid and that he is entitled to full copyright protection. The agreed statement of facts shows conclusively that the defendant has infringed the complainant's copyright; wherefore the complainant may have decree for the relief prayed for in his bill of complaint.

PAPER FROM SAWDUST.

ANOTHER chemical discovery which is expected to make wood pulp and paper products many times more plentiful and much cheaper than they are at present was announced at the State University, at Minneapolis, on March 27.

The discoverer is Dr. George B. Frankforter, dean of the College of Chemistry, who has worked on the process for more than twelve years. The discovery makes possible the manufacture of paper from fir trees, of sawdust and waste timber.

As proof of the value of his discovery Dr. Frankforter shows a table recording his experiment with one cord of fir wood. The wood cost $7.50 and from it he obtained wood pulp worth $39, turpentine worth $41.60 and by-products of a lesser value. The waste that is now burned or thrown away, Dr. Frankforter says, can be used as well as the fresh cut wood.

COMMUNICATIONS.

LOOK OUT FOR THIS PERRY.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I have just learned that a man giving the name of Perry and purporting to be a nephew of mine has been calling upon literary persons and librarians in various Southern cities, claiming to be connected with Houghton Mifflin Co., or with the Atlantic Monthly. The man is a swindler and has never had anything to do with me or with the Atlantic. My only nephew is eleven years of age. My Southern correspondents have described the man who introduced himself as Mr. Perry as being about forty-five years of age and somewhat stout. He has succeeded in borrowing considerable sums of money from time to time upon the strength of his supposed relations with the Houghton Mifflin Co. or with the Atlantic.

Very truly yours,

BLISS PERRY.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. DR. JOHN CROWELL, for many years pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church in East Orange, N. J., died on March 29. Dr. Crowell was born in Philadelphia, June 22, 1814. He was the author of a work entitled "Republic—Popular Government an Appointment of God," "Christ in All the Scriptures," and contributed about four hundred articles to what became the "International Encyclopædia."

HENRY WOOD, the well-known writer on metaphysical subjects, died in Brookline, Mass., March 28. Mr. Wood was born in Barre, Vt., January 16, 1834. He was the author of thirteen books, which have gone through from three to fifteen editions each. His best-known book is, perhaps, "Ideal Suggestions Through Mental Photography," which has even been translated into Chinese. He was the pioneer author in the system of mental healing which has culminated in the so-called Emmanuel Movement. Dr. Worcester, whose name is most prominently connected with this movement, received much of his inspiration from Mr. Wood, and repeatedly sought his counsel. Mr. Wood's last book, "The New Old Healing," was brought out last year by Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, his exclusive publishers.

ANDREW MERWIN, president of the Merwin-Clayton Sales Co., died on the morning of March 27, at his home in Orange, N. J. Mr. Merwin was born in Brooklyn, May 12, 1836. After graduating from the Wesleyan University, in 1855, he entered the business of Bangs, Merwin & Co., of which his father, Andrew M. Merwin, was then auctioneer. Upon the death of the elder Merwin, Andrew Merwin, Jr., succeeded his father as auctioneer. When the firm of Bangs, Merwin & Co., was sold to the Anderson Auction Co., in 1903, Mr. Merwin with several of the assistants of the old firm formed the Merwin-Clayton Sales Co., of which he became its president. Four years ago he was overcome by heat near his home, from which he never really recovered. As auctioneer and business associate he was highly esteemed, and was generally regarded to be one of the most popular book auctioneers of his time in New York City.

DR. JAMES HULME CANFIELD, librarian of Columbia University, died on the evening of March 29. His death was due to a shock caused by a collision between a car in which he was riding to his home and a heavy truck. He narrowly escaped death, but was able to reach his home in Pleasantville, Westchester County, N. Y. A day or two later he suffered a stroke of apoplexy and was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, in New York City. On March 27 he suffered a second stroke and two days later another, which proved fatal. Dr. Canfield was born in Delaware, O., March 18, 1847. He received his preparatory education in the Brooklyn [N. Y.] Polytechnic, and graduated from Williams College in 1868. The three years following he applied himself to the construction of railroads in Iowa and Minnesota, and soon after was admitted to the Michigan bar. Until 1877 Dr. Canfield practiced law, but laid it aside to take up the professorship of history and civics in the State University of Kansas, where he remained fourteen years. Following that period he was chancellor of the State University of Nebraska for four years and president of the State University of Ohio for a similar period. In 1899 he was made librarian of Columbia University and continued as such up to the day of his death. He wrote "Taxation," "A History of Kansas," "Local Government in Kansas" and "The College Student and His Problems." As a lecturer upon educational subjects he attained high rank. The degree of Doctor of Literature was conferred upon him by Oxford University, in recognition of his educational work. The funeral was held in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, the first ever held there.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

F. MARION CRAWFORD, who was critically ill at his villa in Sorrento, Italy, is reported to be out of danger and on the way to recovery.

THE novel to succeed "Daphne," by Mrs. Humphry Ward, published serially in McClure's Magazine under the title "Marriage à la Mode," will have a Canadian background. It will be published by Smith & Elder serially in The Cornhill Magazine in the fall.

ANXIETY is felt regarding John Davidson, the poet, who made a sudden reputation by his "Fleet Street Eclogues," and who has been missing from his home at Penzance for nearly two weeks. Mr. Davidson was in good health and spirits on that day. He left the house for an evening stroll, and has not since been seen by his family. As he sometimes suffered from an affection of the heart, it is feared that he may have had a sudden seizure.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE April Delineator marks another step in the progress of that enterprising woman's magazine. In enlarged form, sumptuously illustrated, it offers a fascinating table of contents. Commander Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., describes "The Most Dramatic Event of My Life," and William Estabrook Chancellor considers the question, "Where Shall We Live?" One of the most interesting articles of the month is by the famous producer of operas, Oscar Hammerstein, who discusses "The Future of the American Prima Donna" and predicts supremacy for her. Marie van Vorst contributes an intimate study of Carmen Sylva in an article entitled "At Home With the Queen of Roumania." Lee K. Frankel tells "What Life Insurance Really Means." "The Children's Conference" at Washington and President Roosevelt's address reveal what the movement for the benefit of dependent children is accomplishing. The fiction also conforms with the high literary standard of The Delineator. In addition to the brilliant serial, "Stradella," by F. Marion Crawford, there are three short stories by Theodosia Garrison, Mary Tracy Earle and Margaret Hannis. The fashion section is among the best that can be supplied. The Paris letter and the department conducted by Mrs. Clara E. Simcox are supplemented by The Delineator models and designs famous in all parts of the world.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MRS. CHARLES F. ATKINSON, of Brookline, Mass., known throughout the book world as Miss Carro M. Clark, the founder and present head of the C. M. Clark Publishing Co., Boston, is combining business and pleasure in a trip to the Pacific Coast.

DANA ESTES, the founder of the publishing firm of Dana Estes & Company, returned on the St. Louis, March 28, from his eight months' trip, during which he covered much of the African territory which will be the scene of ex-President Roosevelt's hunt.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AUBURN, N. Y.—Henry Ivison is offering to compromise with his creditors at twenty-five per cent.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The receiver of the Doxey Book Shop Co. has just declared the first and final dividend at the rate of 0.00518 per cent. The receiver, B. F. Cator, explains that "the smallness of the dividend is due to the fact that the goods were so expensive and high class that it was impossible to sell them for anything near their actual value."

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The Chivers Bookbinding Company has been chartered by the State Department with a capital of $75,000. The directors are T. F. Barry and Cedric Chivers, of Brooklyn, and A. M. Henshaw, of Manhattan. The company will publish, print and bind books.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Chicago Book Mart opened up a few months ago by Louis Danziger, at 3106 Prairie Avenue, has secured the services of S. B. Bradt, well known in local book circles. A catalogue of the Book Mart's stock will be issued shortly.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Frank M. Morris Company, (Morris Book Shop,) is offering to compromise at seventy-five per cent., payable in three equal instalments of one, two and three years.

GREENVILLE, N. C.—The Evans Book Store has sold out.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—The Faulding Book Store, at 731 State Street, which made an assignment to the Los Angeles Stationers' Board of Trade, has been purchased by H. L. and W. W. Osborne, and it will hereafter be known as The Mission Book Store, H. L. Osborne, Manager. W. W. Osborne, who is well known to the book and stationery trade, has sold a half interest in his own store, located at 923-925 State Street, to his brother, but will continue to manage it as heretofore.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE latest volume in the limited edition of Anatole France's works in English, published by John Lane Company, is "Thais." This is the story of a struggle of a monk for the soul of a dancer.

JAMES POTT & Co. are fitting out their Bagster and Cambridge editions of the Bible with a new "open-flat" binding, which will enable the book to lie open absolutely flat, keep the shape of its back and lessen materially the liability of the splitting of the book.

THE Lawyers Titles Insurance and Trust Company, 160 Broadway, New York City, is giving a loan exhibition of views of old New York, which will be open to the public until April 10 from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M. The exhibition is in charge of J. H. Jordan, the well-known dealer in prints.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., have just brought out a fifth edition of "Irish Life and Character," by Michael MacDonagh, author of "The Book of Parliament," etc. The book is well known for its portrayal of genuine Irish humor and its avoidance of all extravagant exaggerations and burlesque.

DUFFIELD & Co. have just ready a new book by Chatfield-Taylor, entitled "Fame's Pathway," a novel dealing with the early life and love romance of Molière. The book is full of character studies and throws an interesting light upon the great French dramatist and the fascinating Paris of his day.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY have just ready under the title of "Carmina," a collection of the best of those clever verses in the Italian and Irish dialects and in plain English which have been so widely quoted during several years past, credited to "T. A. Daly, in The Catholic Standard and Times." It also includes several of the most popular things from "Canzoni," Mr. Daly's first book, which has run into a sixth edition since its publication in 1906.

GINN & Co. have just ready Ham and Leonard's "Brief German Grammar," which has been prepared with unusual care. Two preliminary editions have been tested in the classes of several colleges, and have been revised by a number of teachers in Germany. The work is essentially a drill book, and will be found especially useful in giving a thorough grounding in the main facts of grammar, preliminary to the reading and writing of German.

B. W. DODGE & Co. expect to publish this month a review of recent progress in psychological research under the title "Are the Dead Alive?" by Fremont Rider. The book is founded on a series of articles by the same author, running this winter in The Delinquent. It will be fully illustrated from photographs, many of them never before published, and will be especially noteworthy for the statements of personal belief given in reply to the question asked by the book's title by such writers and investigators as Sir Oliver Lodge, Professor William James, Dr. Cesar Lombroso, Count Tolstoy, Professor Charles Richet, Dr. Maxwell, and numerous others.

THE BALL PUBLISHING COMPANY have just published a Library edition of "Fabian Essays in Socialism," first brought out by them last December. These essays were first delivered by members of the Fabian Society to mixed audiences in London and the Provinces and were then published in London in 1889. They include "The Fabian Society and Its Work," by W. Clark; "The Basis of Socialism: Economic," by G. Bernard Shaw; "Historic," by Sidney Webb; "Industrial," by W. Clarke; "Moral," by Sydney Olivier. "The Organization of Society: Property Under Socialism," by Graham Wallis; "The Transition to Social Democracy: Transition," by G. Bernard Shaw; and "The Outlook," by Hubert Bland. A new fourteen-page preface by Bernard Shaw is a special feature of this Library edition.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish shortly "A Guide to the Country Home," a practical little volume by Edward K. Parkinson. The book aims to tell the prospective purchaser of a country place in plain terms just what he ought to know about the house, the grounds, and all their appurtenances. It is designed especially to show how profit, as well as pleasure, may be derived from the country home. Some of the chapter headings are: The way out of town; Choosing the home; Winter planning; Tools, their cost and use; What shall we raise; Live stock—the horse; Cows, their cost and care; Swine, the curing of hams and bacons; Fowls, the care, cost and profit; Crops and how to plant them; The orchard; The market garden; Bees; Trees, lawns and shrubbery, and The harvest.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY will publish late this month Antonio Scarfoglio's book, "Round the World in a Motor." The author, as already noted by us, accompanied the Italian car in last year's New York to Paris automobile race, and his forthcoming book is descriptive of the adventures and incidents occurring along the route. The book will contain numerous illustrations and material of especial interest to the motorist as well as to the general reader, and will be published uniform with Barzini's "Pekin to Paris," published last year. Mrs. Theodosia Garrison, who is so well known as a poet through her contributions to the magazines, has made a collection of her work, which will be published by Mr. Kennerley next month under the title "The Joy o' Life, and Other Poems." The thousands of letters that Mrs. Garrison has received from her readers promise a wide circulation for this volume.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY are just publishing a concise "History of Common School Education," by Dr. Lewis F. Anderson, that is intended to interest general readers as well as teachers. The book represents a fresh study of original sources, and has the practical aim of bringing the facts of history to bear upon the problems of common school work in America. It commences with the Greeks and Romans. In the later chapters the author deals with Rousseau, Pestalozzi and other great educators; then in considerable detail with the history of common school education in America. They have just brought out President David Starr Jordan's biting allegory of Protectionism, entitled "The Fate of Iciodorum," in a little volume, with a preface, some amendments in the text, and some notes illustrative of "the fulfilment of prophecy" as made in the first edition.

ALTHOUGH published but two weeks ago, Agnes Henry's little book on "Skat Made Easy," (George W. Jacobs & Co.,) has already won many friends. It has found a ready welcome among skat players, especially among those novices who desire to become masters of the game. One purchaser, after giving it a trial, remarked that it made the game seem so easy that one almost lost sight of the fact that it had always heretofore been regarded as extremely difficult. "The Watchers of the Plains," the novel by Ridgwell Cullum depicting life in Dakota during one of the terrible Sioux uprisings of the '70's, although published only a few weeks ago, has already gone into its second edition. The publishers, George W. Jacobs & Co., state that it promises to be one of their most popular novels. In view of the present trouble with the Indians in Oklahoma, the appearance of Mr. Cullum's book is most timely.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD Co. have just ready "The Chrysalis," by Harold Morton Kramer, a story which opens at an exciting Yale-Harvard football game, then shifts to the Northwest, where the triumphant Yale athlete meets a girl with all the fine possibilities of a chrysalis; "A Pair of Madcaps," a long story and several shorter tales by J. T. Trowbridge, illustrated by Frank T. Merrill; and "Dave Porter and His Classmates," the fifth volume of the Dave Porter Series which Edward Stratemeyer will add noticeably to his constantly growing popularity. Although much was expected of Harold Morton Kramer's new novel, "The Chrysalis," and an extra large first edition prepared for that reason by his publishers, Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, the heavy advance orders compelled a second large printing before the date of publication, April 1. The demand is especially strong in the Northwest, where the scene of this exceptionally vigorous novel is mostly laid.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish on April 17 a work on "The Panama Canal and its Makers," by Vaughan Cornish, a fellow of the Royal Geographical, Geological and Chemical Societies of London. Mr. Cornish visited the canal in 1907, and on the latter occasion he was afforded special opportunities for investigation and study. The book presents in a moderate compass an impartial review of the salient features of the great undertaking, and is fully illustrated with maps, plans and photographs taken by the author. They will bring out at the same time a new story by Percy J. Brebner, author of "Princess Maritza," entitled "A Royal Ward," a captivating story dealing with the wooing of Lady Betty Walmisley by an adventurous young Frenchman, which will have illustrations in color by Harry C. Edwards; also, Anne Warner's new book, "In a Mysterious Way," which though it has a serious side, dealing with love and sacrifice, also teems with its author's original humor.

THE JOHN MCBRIDE Co., New York City, will publish on April 16 "The Gypsy Count," a romance of chivalry, by May Wynne, author of "Henry of Navarre," etc., with a frontispiece in colors by E. Fuhr; "A Favorite of Napoleon I.," being the memoirs of Mademoiselle George, edited from the original manuscript by Paul Cheramy, which show Napoleon Bonaparte in quite a new light as regards his relations with women, the price of which will be $2.50, not 50 cents, as announced in the Spring Announcement number; also, "The Revelation to the Monk of Evesham Abbey in the Year of Our Lord 1196, concerning the Places of Purgatory and Paradise," rendered for the first time into English, by Valerian Paget. The unknown monk has been well-called a minor Dante, in that he conducts the reader through the pains and tortures of a mediævally-constituted purgatory, and through those pleasant fields of Paradise wherein the purged souls of the departed wander, when the price of worldly evil-doing has been paid.

THE COCHRANE PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York City, will bring out on April 4 "Lady Dean's Daughter," by J. Noot, a romance of old England, with illustrations by R. W. Amick; "Plain Economic Facts," by Ambrose M. Thomas, an exhaustive treatise on money, banking and finance; also, "An Unfinished Divorce," by Francis D. Gallatin, which deals with the marriage problem in an original manner. They will publish later "In the Land of Extremes," by Marie Cottrell, a story of the true Arkansas; "Various Verses," by William Temple Bell; "Short Methodist Stories," by the Rev. R. T. Edwards; "Socialism vs. Christianity," by Edward R. Hartman; "Gracie and Her Pets," a book for children by Margaret L. Hunter; "The Prince and the Princess," by P. M. Silloway; "Idylls of the King," a comment on Tennyson's poem, by the Rev. Walter Spence; "A Vision from the Wild," a collection of verse by Dr. J. W. Webster; "Pet Marjorie and Sir Walter Scott," by Kate Wiley; "Where the Fishers Go," by the Rev. P. W. Browne; also, "The Truth About the Philippines," by ex-Governor Charles A. Reynolds.

THE MODERN MEDICINE PUB. Co. announce for early publication a work on phototherapy, entitled "Light Therapeutics: a Practical Manual, Physics, Physiologic Effects, Technic, Therapeutics, Clinical Applications," by Dr. J. H. Kellogg, superintendent of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. This work is the result of what might very properly be called exhaustive experiments and applications of the therapeutic uses of light in one of the world's greatest sanitariums. Perhaps nowhere else could such superior facilities be found for working out the problems connected with the use of light for curative purposes. Very little that is authoritative has been written on phototherapy, so that this book may be said to be the first really scientific work on this very important subject. It contains probably twice as much matter as any other book published on the uses of light in disease. The treatment that Dr. Kellogg gives on the subject is indicated by the five sections into which the work is divided, viz.: (1) The Physics of Light; (2) The Physiologic Effects of Light; (3) The Therapeutics of Light; (4) Technic of Light Applications, and (5) Clinical Phototherapy.

CASSELL & COMPANY have just brought out a new book by Richard Whiteing, author of "No. 5 John Street," entitled "Little People." The charming essays appearing under this title deal with the "Little People," the commonplace people. They are character sketches from real life, poems writ in prose, thrilling with pathos, sparkling with humor. Among their announcements for the spring are a new book by Katharine Tynan, entitled "Mary Gray," a new detective story, "The Amethyst Cross," by Fergus Hume; an excellent semi-religious novel, "Hoodman Grey, Christian," a story of modern Cornwall, and the conflict between legendary superstition and the teachings of religion; "Ships of Desire," by a new writer, Kate Horn; and "A Life's Arrears," by Florence Warden, the story of the receipt of an unexpected legacy and the exciting adventures of the recipient. The Right Rev. Handley C. G. Moule, D.D., Bishop of Durham, whose devotional books have sold by the thousands, is represented in their list with "Faith: the Word and the Thing." He describes the various shades of meaning attached to the word "Faith" in Scripture and in history, and with many happy illustrations he expounds his theme, not only from the point of view of an expositor, but also from that of a practical worker.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out the fourth and concluding volume of Professor Bailey's "Cyclopedia of American Agriculture." This work has been in preparation for a number of years and is the largest enterprise of its kind ever undertaken by an American publisher. Its value to the farmer and dweller in the country will be not less than that of the best general encyclopedias to the literary or professional worker. The following facts serve to indicate something of the importance of this work. It consists of new and original matter, written by more than three hundred experts and leading authorities under the direct supervision of Professor L. H. Bailey, of Cornell University; a large part of the material is not to be found anywhere else in published form; it contains about twenty-eight hundred pages and more than two thousand illustrations, including one hundred full-page plates; it is arranged topically instead of alphabetically, the first volume being devoted to General Consideration, the second to Crops, the third to Animals, and the fourth to Social Economy in the Country. The last volume, just ready, is perhaps the most important of all, and is of especial interest at this time owing to the discussions that have recently taken place with regard to country life. The fact that Professor Bailey was chosen by President Roosevelt to head the commission on country life is sufficient proof of his ability to deal with the subject in a large way.

THE ALICE HARRIMAN COMPANY, Seattle, Washington, will publish shortly a work of considerable importance in "Marcus Whitman, Patriot and Poet," written by the late Rev. Dr. Myron Eells, who for thirty years made a close study of the history of the Northwest at first hand. The especial value of this story, told with the earnestness and sobriety of a man deeply imbued with his subject, is the light which it throws on the early history of the Pacific Northwest and its acquisition by the United States. An immense volume of speculative criticism has already been published concerning Whitman's early life, of his crossing the continent, his missionary work, his difficulty with the Indians, the motives and value of his famous ride in midwinter and his memorable return with the immigration of 1843 to his beloved Oregon country. These questions are treated with judicial fairness by Dr. Eells, who had access to a vast amount of material from important sources, much of it hitherto unknown. The character of Mrs. Whitman also has not been overlooked. The heroic woman who first crossed the continent and established the first American home on the Pacific Coast appears in clear outline and tells her own thrilling story of endurance and devotion. Every page of the book breathes of Whitman's strongest traits, and the reader is impressed, by unquestionable evidence, with Marcus Whitman's desire to widen the domain of his country, to save the natives for his God, the Pacific Northwest for his nation.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish in April under the title of "A Pluralistic Universe" the Lectures on the Hibbert Foundation delivered at Oxford last year by Professor William James, author of "The Will to Believe," "Pragmatism," etc. The lectures in the forthcoming volume were delivered under the title of "The Present Situation in Philosophy." In them the author vigorously criticises the school of transcendental idealism, which began at Oxford under the influence of T. H. Green, forty years ago, and continues his well-known attempt to save empiricism and pluralism from the reproach under which, according to him, they unjustly lie, of being philosophies of irreligion and disintegration. The book, in spite of polemic passages, is intended to be conciliatory in its tendency, and to furnish a platform on which empiricism and rationalism may join hands in a concrete view of life. They also announce a book by Frederick A. Cleveland, of the Bureau of Municipal Research, New York City, and Professor of Finance in New York University, entitled "Chapters on Municipal Administration and Accounting." The reason for this book, it is stated, "is the dearth of available literature on the business aspects of government, and the many requests made for the various papers and addresses which the work comprises. These chapters have a direct historic relation to three important movements, viz., the work of the National Municipal League, the work of the Bureau of Census, and the work of the Bureau of Municipal Research." Another book by the same author in collaboration with Fred W. Powell, which will be published in The Architect's Library, is "Railroad Promotion and Capitalization in the United States."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will bring out at once Madame Novikoff's "Reminiscences," edited by W. T. Stead, in two volumes. Madame Novikoff was a charming woman, cultured, intellectually acute, with rare social gifts, a generous nature, and a finished diplomat, who, without official standing in London, was enabled to do her country yeoman's service at many a critical moment. Her attractions of person and manner drew many distinguished men about her, and, though herself above reproach, lighted fierce fires of jealousy in the bosoms of many a daughter of Britannia. The two volumes will contain hundreds of letters from Gladstone, Froude, Kinglake, Freeman and other notables. They have also nearly ready "The Playground of Europe," by Sir Leslie Stephen, which, though it has long held a place in the realm of mountaineering as a classic, has never been published in this country. They promise for the 10th inst. a work on "The Great Lakes," by James Oliver Curwood, which has the twofold advantage of being written by a man who knows both Lakes and their shores and what has been written about them. The general reader will enjoy the romance attaching to the past history of the Lakes and not less the romance of the present—the story of the great commercial fleets that plough our inland seas, created to transport the fruits of the earth and the metals that are dug from the bowels of the earth. To the business man who has interests in or about the Lakes, or to the prospective investor in Great Lakes enterprises, the book will be found suggestive. Comparatively little has been written of these fresh-water seas, and many of his readers will be amazed at the wonderful story which this volume tells. It will be included in Putnam's American Waterways series, and will be generously illustrated.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will publish on April 17 "Dragon's Blood," a new novel of life in China by Henry Milner Rideout, author of "The Siamese Cat." Its dedication will interest all Harvard men and runs as follows: "To Charles Townsend Copeland, 15 Hollis Hall, Cambridge, Mass. Dear Cope: Mr. Peachey Carneham, when he returned from Kafiristan, in bad shape but with a king's head in a bag, exclaimed to the man in the newspaper office, 'And you've been sitting there ever since!' There is only a pig in the following poke; and yet in giving you the string to cut and the bag to open, I feel something of Peachey's wonder to think of you, across all this distance and change, as still sitting in your great chair by the green lamp, while past a dim background of books moves the procession of youth. Many of us, growing older in various places, remember well your friendship, and are glad that you are there, urging our successors to look backward into good books, and forward into life. Yours ever truly, H. M. R." They will issue on the 27th inst. an unusual book, entitled "The Valley of Shadows: Recollections of Lincoln's Country, 1858-1863," by Francis Grierson. The author has had a varied career which gives a peculiar importance and significance to this book. Born in England of gentle stock, he came at an early age to America with his father, who settled temporarily in Illinois. After dwelling there through the early years of the War between the States, the family returned to England, and Mr. Grierson, who had early developed a remarkable musical talent, enjoyed in England and upon the Continent a career as a virtuoso and improvisatore of a brilliancy that has rarely been equaled in the annals of music. Some years later he forsook the art of music for that of literature, and by a volume of literary studies in French and two subsequent works in English won a commanding position both as a stylist and as a subtle and penetrating thinker in philosophy and criticism. The present book, an autobiographical account of his early years in Illinois and Missouri, is of remarkable quality and interest.

PICK-UPS.

COMPETITION is the life of trade, provided it is restricted to quality and service. Competition in price lessens value and destroys integrity.—Franklin Printer.

"THE VESUVIUS OF BOOKS."—Fifty-odd years ago N. P. Willis declaimed against "the Vesuvius of books." If Mr. Willis could "revisit these glimpses" he would infer that Vesuvius and Aetna had gone into partnership.

MISSED FIRE.—The book catalogue of a New York auctioneer in advertising a Defoe's "Life and Adventures of Signor Roselli at the Hague, London, 1709, 1724," added this note:

Rare. Both volumes bear the fine old bookplate of Reginald Pole. Vol. 2 has the initials, S. P. on a fly leaf—query. Samuel Pepys?

As Pepys died in 1703 the query is queered and the joke obvious.—Buffalo Commercial.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

22 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

23 Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

ISSUED FROM

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The Annual American Catalog, 1908

In two parts: A short-title index to all the book publications of the year and a full-title index, with brief annotation of the leading books of 1908. (Ready March, 1909.) 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

The American Catalog, 1905-1907

Vol. I containing in one alphabet an index to all books published during 1905-06-07; under author, title, subject and series entries. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II containing the full-title Weekly Record material of The Publishers' Weekly for the same years, in a separate alphabet for each year. 8vo, half morocco, $6.00.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $15.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Contains the latest catalogues of upward of 200 American publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names, with smaller lists, fully indexed, at the end of the volume, indispensable to every one who has any interest in the sale or purchase of books. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Index to the Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1902, out of print.

The Supplementary Index, 1903-1904, 500 pages, 8vo, cloth, with thumb index, $3.00. The alphabet in this volume is supplementary to the original Index of 1902.

The Library Journal

Chiefly devoted to library economy and bibliography. Established in 1876. Published monthly. Subscription $4.00 a year, postpaid; single numbers, 35 cents. Price to Europe or other countries in the Union, 16s. a year; single numbers, 1s. 6d.

The Annual Library Index

Including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book-Chapters, etc., Bibliographies, Necrology, Index to Dates of Principal Events, and a Directory of Libraries. Edited, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of The Library Journal staff, by W. I. FLETCHER. (Published annually.) The volume covering 1908, $5.00; all prior volumes, $3.50 each.

The American Educational List

Contains a price-list of the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject. (Published annually.) 8vo, leatherette, 50 cents.

English Catalogue of Books (Annual)

Containing a complete list of all the books published in Great Britain and Ireland in the calendar year, with index to subjects. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Directory of Publishers

Contains names and addresses of 3789 firms and individuals who issued books in the U. S. from Jan. 1, 1905, to Dec. 31, 1907. (Reprinted from The American Catalog.) 8vo, leatherette, red edges, $1.00.

The Profession of Bookselling

A handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. By A. GROWOLL, managing editor of The Publishers' Weekly, author of "A Bookseller's Library," "Three Centuries of English-Booktrade Bibliography," etc. Parts 1 and 2. 8vo, boards, each $2.00. (Concluding part in preparation.)

Publications of Societies

A provisional list of the publications of American scientific, literary and other societies, from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Schedules nearly 1000 societies issuing publications, and gives title-entries of all their publications, as far as data could be obtained from the societies and from libraries. 8vo, paper, $2.50.

State Publications

A provisional list of the official publications of the several States of the United States from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Part 1: New England States. Part 2: North Central States. Part 3: Western States and Territories. Part 4: Southern States. The four parts bound in one vol., half morocco, $12.00; the four parts, each in paper cover, $10.00 for the set. (Not sold separately.)

TO BIBLE BUYERS

Our new "Open-Flat" binding, (Patent Pending), which is now supplied on our Bibles, is far superior to any method of binding yet devised.

Its many advantages over all other Bible bindings will be at once apparent.

The Bible will lie open absolutely flat.

The back of the Bible will at all times retain its shape.

With this perfected binding the liability of the Bible splitting is materially lessened.

The new "Open-Flat" Bible binding is to be had only on the Bagster and Cambridge Editions.

LIPPINCOTT'S EARLY APRIL ISSUES

A NEW VOLUME IN THE "French Men of Letters Series"

SAINTE-BEUVE

By GEORGE McLEAN HARPER

Professor of English Literature in Princeton University; author of "MASTERS OF FRENCH LITERATURE"

"SAINTE-BEUVE" is the fourth volume of this distinctive French Men of Letters Series, which, as regards not only pure biography and illuminative criticism, but bibliography and collateral matter as well, has become recognized as most authoritative, fully meeting the needs of the serious student of French literature.

In addition to his already wide knowledge of Sainte-Beuve, the author of the present work spent several months of special investigation in Europe, successfully unearthing a great amount of new information, as well as much correspondence heretofore unused. All in all Professor Harper's contribution to this Series is as brilliant and authoritative piece of literary criticism as has appeared in many years.
